Grace, Prince Take First Vows

By Preston Grover

MONTE CARLO, Thursday, April 19 (AP) — Freshly married in Monaco's ancient warrior castle, Prince Rainier III and Princess Grace took their first night out as man and wife at a flashy ballet gala.

Today they will be married finally as Roman Catholics in the cathedral.

Meyner Real Winner In New Jersey

NEWARK, N. J., April 18 (AP) — Gov. Robert B. Meyner, a dark horse possibility for the Democratic presidential or vice presidential nomination, emerged today as the party's real winner in New Jersey's primary.

President Eisenhower rolled to victory on the Republican side over token opposition and was assured of the party's 38 delegate votes.

Meyner led an unpledged slate of Democratic convention delegates that administered a smashing defeat to Sen. Estes Kefauver, a presidential hopeful and a consistent thorn to organization Democrats.

In the delegate balloting, the young bachelor governor's forces garnered 35 1/2 of the state's 36 convention votes. Kefauver got 1/2 vote. The Tennessee had campaigned vigorously in the state for six days and had said he expected to get at least 10 votes.

Boosts Stock
The results boosted Meyner's political stock and gave Kefauver the worst setback of his campaign for the presidential nomination at the party's August convention in Chicago. Kefauver, in a telegram to Meyner, congratulated him on a "tremendous victory."

Kefauver's setback was emphasized also in Eisenhower's almost 3 to 1 vote in the "popularity" phase of the voting.

Returns from 3,982 of the state's 4,155 voting districts gave Eisenhower 325,370 and Kefauver 109,604.

In Washington, Eisenhower expressed "warm thanks."

Adlai Stevenson, whose name was not on the New Jersey ballot and who did not speak in the state, got at least 2,274 write-in votes.

Engineers Need Money

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — Senators were told today the Army Engineers could use $450,000 during the year beginning July 1 on studies of flood control measures and water resources on the Delaware River.

The budget requests $100,000.

Col. Clarence Renshaw, North Atlantic Division engineer at New York City, told a senate public works appropriations subcommittee that the larger amount could be used to advantage in the next fiscal year.

Comment
His comment came in reply to a question by Sen. Ellender (D-La.).

Sen. Martin (R-Pa.), a committee member, said that people in the Delaware River area were hopeful that Congress would provide a half million dollars.

Road Bill Approved
WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — A 51 1/2-billion-dollar road — building program — one of the most important measures before Congress this session — was approved today by the House Public Works Committee.

The congressional economists said that reports through mid-April indicate "that the federal budget will show an administrative surplus of about two billion dollars and a cash surplus of perhaps four billion dollars for this fiscal year."

Soviet Leaders Arrive In Great Britain

LONDON, April 18 (AP) — Soviet Russia's leaders, Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev, came to Britain today proclaiming themselves good neighbors. British crowds greeted them with thin cheers, some boos and spoofing curiosity.

"Welcome Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier" said a placard hoisted by a group of youth. That got a big hand.

Prime Minister Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd dined with Bulganin and Khrushchev tonight at Claridges, the luxury hotel where the Russians have taken royal suites on the first floor.

There they began informal talks on East-West issues. Official conferences start tomorrow on such problems as German reunification, disarmament and the middle east.

Correct
Prime Minister Eden, a diplomat from way back, was correct and elegant as he met Bulganin, the goateed Soviet premier; and roly-poly Khrushchev, the Communist party boss, at London's smoke-blackened Victoria station.

He voiced a desire for serious talks with the Russians on international problems.

"In greeting, I express the hope that we shall, by our work and by our decision, improve relations between our countries and our peoples," he said.

Bulganin, beaming broadly, replied through an interpreter. He extended greetings and declared the Soviet government seeks to have friendly relations with Britain as well as the United States, France and other countries.

"The social and political systems in our countries are different," Bulganin said. "But, provided there is reasonable understanding of the fact that we have to live together on one planet, differences in political structure should not be a hindrance to us living as good neighbors, cooperating actively to improve our relations."

Portantier asked if Rainier consented to take Miss Kelly as his wife.

Same Answer
"Oui," answered the Prince in a low voice.

Then both signed a book and Miss Kelly officially became Princess Grace de Monaco and holder of a score of other titles.

But both bride and bridegroom, as Roman Catholics, consider the marriage is not valid until after they are united in matrimony according to the rites of the Church in Monaco's cathedral tomorrow.

They did not kiss as they rose to lead the procession from the room. Nor, said Grace afterward, are they likely to kiss in the church ceremony tomorrow.

"It is seldom done," she said of kissing at civil ceremonies, and, she added, "often not in religious marriages either."

Despite the exhausting bustle of wedding preparations since her arrival here a bare week ago, Grace still could smile radiantly at her guests, beam into the glaring camera lights and almost laugh at her tense new husband.

Rainier was far less calm during the ceremony, although he appeared controlled and easy when he entered just after 11 a.m. According to protocol, the bride and her family entered first.

Grace and the Prince sat about three feet apart on arm chairs upholstered in red silk. He was on the right, nearer the battery of cameras and hot floodlights.

He pulled his mustache, ran a finger under his collar, chewed a fingernail, then thrust his hands firmly in his lap.

On his right, to sign as witnesses, were his estranged mother and father, Prince Pierre and Princess Charlotte, and friends and notables of his realm.

Two Trucks Collide
PITTSBURGH, April 18 (AP) — Two big trucks smashed almost head-on near here today, one driver burning to death in his cab and the other suffering injuries which proved fatal several hours later.

Spoken of as the federal budget, covering operating spending and income. The cash surplus would reflect collections for Social Security and other trust funds.

The economic memorandum did not hold out any prospect for tax cuts as a result of its higher surplus estimate. It also said there were some inflationary dangers to guard against.

Killed
Killed in the crash were Edward G. Haussman, 38, Harrisburg, the pilot; Edward A. Herre Jr., Harrisburg; Donley J. Parr Jr., Lebanon; and H. G. Simpson, Gettysburg.

The private Beechcraft Bonanza plane was en route from Harrisburg to Syracuse, N. Y., when it ran into a sudden snow squall and crashed into a mountain.

Russia Joins Atomic Energy Board

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — Russia agreed with the United States and 10 other countries tonight to join in setting up an international agency charged with developing the peaceful uses of atomic energy around the world.

A communique released by the State Department announced that a 12-nation conference which began here Feb. 27 had "unanimously adopted" the text of a charter for a proposed "international atomic energy agency." The charter will be presented to an 84-nation conference which will meet at United Nations headquarters in New York in September.

The agreement brings near realization an "atoms for peace" proposal made by President Eisenhower to the United Nations in December 1953. He suggested that countries possessing atomic resources should contribute materials to an international pool which would then be used for the development of atomic power plants in countries around the world.

Russia is reported to have made concessions on several points — agreeing that the projected agency would not be subjected to the Big Power veto in the U.N. Security Council and dropping an early proposal for the inclusion of Red China in the new organization.

The charter adopted will be made public in a few days, after it is officially reported by the delegates here to their home governments.

Eisenhower Gives Cautious Welcome

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — President Eisenhower added his voice today to a cautious official U.S. welcome for Russia's offer to support a Middle East settlement.

A White House statement said of yesterday's Kremlin gesture: "If it demonstrates a real desire and determination on the part of the Soviet Union to back the United Nations effort, the President welcomes this support."

Eisenhower thus echoed the guarded reaction yesterday of Secretary of State Dulles. He also emphasized, as Dulles had, that American policy looks primarily to the U.N. for an Arab-Israeli settlement in the Middle East.

More To Say
Eisenhower is expected to have more to say on the whole subject in a speech in Washington Saturday before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

In the Senate, meanwhile, Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) urged Eisenhower to take firm action to prevent war in the Middle East.

Foreign Relations Committee, said "dangerous and futile indecision... has plagued our Middle East policies."

He said Eisenhower should announce U.S. determination to "maintain a lid on the tensions" there.

Officials studying the new Russian move concluded the new Soviet leadership seeks to consolidate a position from which to influence Middle East affairs. Its timing was considered significant — just one day before Soviet leaders Nikita Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin arrived in London for talks with Prime Minister Eden.

Judge Delays Case Ruling
WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — A federal judge today withheld a ruling on whether to throw out an indictment accusing Aldo L. Icardi of falsely denying a part in the World War II slaying of American Maj. William V. Holohan.

After hearing hours of legal argument on the defense motion, U.S. Dist. Judge Richmond B. Keach said his decision will require "careful and deliberate consideration."

He adjourned court until 10 a. m. tomorrow without saying specifically whether he would be ready to rule then.

Jury Sworn
A jury of six men and six women, sworn in Monday to hear the case, was barred from the court during the arguments.

Icardi, a former Army lieutenant and now a Pittsburgh real estate man, is accused of lying under oath six times before a House Armed Services subcommittee in March 1953. Conviction on a perjury charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison.

Stress Causes Plane Crash
HARRISBURG, April 18 (AP) — An investigation for the Civil Aeronautics Administration said today that an airplane crash in Sullivan County last Friday in which four persons were killed was caused by "terrific stress."

William D. Crawford, Harrisburg, CAA aviation safety agent, said portions of the plane were ripped off before it fell. "If an aircraft is operated in excess of its structural limitations," he added, "failure of a part may be expected."

Girl Dies Of Auto Injuries
ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 18 (AP) — An 18-year-old Lebanon, Pa., girl died last night at Allentown Hospital as a result of injuries she suffered Sunday when an automobile in which she was riding collided with a truck west of Allentown.

Others involved in the crash were Shirley Klein, 15, whose condition was critical, and Elbert O'Byrne, 18, whose condition today was reported as fair.

Seated, Harry Ahnert, president; Ted Jenkins, banquet committee chairman; Ed Strickland, top of Pocono Mountains Association; Elvira Carlton, PMVB secretary; standing, Rev. David Newquist, who gave the invocation; William Altier, Eastern Pocono Resort Association president; Harold Swanson, director of vacation and travel development, State Department of Commerce; Francis Shipan, banquet toastmaster; Horace Strunk, PMVB executive secretary; C. Incident Follows Plane's Forced Landing

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) — Secretary of the Air Force Donald Quarles today expressed regrets to Canadian Defense Minister Ralph Campney over an incident which followed the belly landing of a U. S. Globemaster transport near Hamilton, Ont., last night.

Quarles handled the matter by means of a personal telephone call to Ottawa.

The incident involved a Canadian newspaper photographer and an American Air Force officer who drew his pistol at one point to prevent the newsman from getting too close to the damaged aircraft.

The Air Force, after checking with the Canadian commander of the Mt. Hope, Ont., airport, said that about an hour after the accident two or more newsmen entered the field by means other than the regular entrances and approached the plane to photograph it.

Unnamed
The unnamed American lieutenant, one of three security guards posted around the aircraft with the approval of the airport commander, was said by the Air Force to have told the newsmen "courteously that they could not take pictures" except from a distance.

The assigned reason was danger that a spark from a flashlight might cause an explosion around the aircraft where the "fumes were very strong."

The Air Force version, supplied by the Canadian commander of the field, conceded that "an argument ensued and that when the photographer went closer to the aircraft the lieutenant drew his pistol but did not point it at the photographer."

The official version of the incident said also that when the photographer asked the lieutenant to holster his gun, the officer did so.

Brown Determined To Remain On Toll Bridge Commission

TRENTON, N. J., April 18 (AP) — Leslie Brown of Trenton today announced he will let the Delaware River Joint Bridge Commission pick another chairman but clung fast to his determination not to resign from the bistate agency.

Brown, president of Lenox, Inc., said his resignation as chairman of the commission becomes effective at its meeting tomorrow.

He said he felt the commission should be in a position to appoint another chairman because his term as member expires May 1.

Gov. Meyner, who wants Brown to resign from the commission altogether, has made it plain he will not reappoint Brown.

Meyner asked for Brown's resignation in the wake of reports of lavish spending by the bridge commission, including improper payment of salaries to members of its executive committee.

Brown received some $11,000 in 1953-54 as a member of the executive committee.

Meyner has asked Brown to return the money on grounds membership on the bridge commission is non-salaried. Brown said he will make his position on the salary question clear at tomorrow's meeting.

Meyner Receives 3,500 Write-Ins In Jersey Primary

PHILIPSBURG, N. J., April 18 (AP) — Gov. Meyner received at least 3,500 write-in votes in the presidential preference voting in Tuesday's New Jersey primary.

Although he declared he wasn't a candidate for anything except delegate-at-large to the national convention, which he won, Meyner received strong write-in support from Morris and Warren counties. The latter includes his home town of Phillipsburg, and was the starting place of a write-in campaign for him.

Not Tabulated
Many of the county election boards will not tabulate write-in votes until the official canvass next week, so it was not known exactly how many total votes Meyner received.

The governor's listed vote of 3,434 topped that recorded for Adlai Stevenson, 2,274.

Hammaraskjold To Make Announcement

JERUSALEM, April 18 (AP) — U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold is expected to announce a new Egyptian-Israeli cease-fire guarantee before morning.

A usually reliable political source told a reporter tonight Hammarskjold would issue a communique finalizing a fundamental no-shooting agreement for the armistice demarcation line between the two countries.

Hammarskjold, on a Middle East peace mission for the Security Council, conferred privately for a second day with Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion and others here.

An official spokesman said the atmosphere was "very, very satisfactory."

Hammarskjold announced last Thursday that Ben-Gurion and Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser had written him that their forces would refrain from all warlike acts along the border line except in self-defense. Hammarskjold then undertook to get confirmation that they had issued the necessary orders for those forces.

Border Quiet
That border was quiet today. But an Israeli army spokesman said the water pipeline on Lahav settlement, in the southern Judean Hills near the Jordan border, was blown up in three places early Wednesday morning.

Hammarskjold's mission, under way since April 6, aims to bolster the 1949 armistice agreements of Israel with Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria. He left New York two days after unanimous approval of a Security Council resolution providing for it.

A Soviet Foreign Ministry statement promising help in U. N. efforts to get lasting peace in Palestine brought reaction today in Washington, London and the Middle East.

The White House said President Eisenhower welcomed it.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told the House of Commons in London he welcomed the statement too.

But the Washington and London declarations were both qualified.

Murry Snyder, assistant press secretary, read newsmen a statement saying the President welcomed the Soviet communique "if it demonstrates a real desire and determination on the part of the Soviet Union to back the United Nations effort."

Sides Clash On Testimony
BALTIMORE, April 18 (AP) — A shipyard official testified today the Levin J. Marvel, pleasure schooner which sank last August with a loss of 14 lives, should have undergone repairs before the 1955 sailing season. His testimony was vigorously challenged.

Elias Bartholow Jr., manager of the Booz Brothers Shipyard, gave the testimony as one of the government's first witnesses against John H. Meckling, 39, skipper of the Marvel.

Charge
The pleasure boat captain, one of the 13 survivors of a Chesapeake Bay cruise which ended in tragedy, is charged with negligence and misconduct under a statute dating back to 1871.

Bartholow took the stand after Marshall Pritchard, a former master of the 64-year-old Marvel, spent about two hours describing her structure and equipment.

Costly Night Out
NEW YORK, April 18 (AP) — Tickets to the April-in-Paris Charity Ball at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel next Friday night cost $300 a couple. Those staying for a champagne breakfast afterwards will pay an additional $25 each, and raffle tickets will sell for $100.

The entire day will be spent on a visit to the depot where the panel will be the guest of its commanding officer, Col. Robert Angster, during its on-the-scene investigation.

Jury To Visit Depot Today

SCRANTON, April 18 (AP) — The federal grand jury investigating alleged labor racketeering at the U. S. Army Signal Depot at Tobyhanna today heard testimony from five executives of two firms which handled government contracts at the base.

P. J. Schneeberger, project manager, and George B. Nicholson, superintendent of Rochez Brothers, a Pittsburgh construction firm, were followed into the closed session by Morris Ockman, president, and Alex McGrath and Michael Agate, officials of the Keystone Concrete Co., of Philadelphia.

The jury will not sit in court tomorrow.

Authority Moving Into New Office

MONROE COUNTY Housing Authority will move into an office at the court house today.

Rev. Roger C. Stimson, authority chairman, said the housing group will occupy Room 8, located at the rear of court house on the second floor. The space formerly was occupied by the district attorney.

Mr. Stimson said the office will be staffed by Harry Taylor, executive secretary.

Grace May Lose Her Citizenship By One Of Three Ways On Becoming Princess Of Monaco

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) —

Most of us never think about our citizenship. We accept it as we accept our hair, as something we are born with.

Yet, like hair, we can change its color. Or without really meaning to, we can lose it altogether.

Citizenship has been in the news ever since Grace Kelly decided to marry a prince. Grace said "Oui," today, but as far as her U. S. citizenship goes, that doesn't mean a thing.

Before 1922 a U. S. girl automatically lost her citizenship if she married a foreigner. To lose her U. S. citizenship now, Grace will have to take some further action, like swearing allegiance to Monaco, or by voting in their elections, or by announcing formally that she no longer wishes to be a U. S. citizen.

Other Ways

True, there are other ways for a natural born citizen to lose his citizenship, but they don't seem to apply to Grace Kelly.

Such as being convicted of deserting from the armed services in time of war, or of hiding out abroad in an effort to avoid the wartime draft, or by enlisting in some other army without prior U. S. approval.

Undoubtedly many a deserter or draft dodger lit out without ever suspecting that one possible penalty was loss of citizenship.

Yet he should have, for citizenship of a major nation has been treasured throughout the centuries. Its advantages rarely have been better described than in the Acts of the Apostles:

"And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the centurion that stood by, is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned?"

"When the centurion heard that, he went and told the chief captain saying, Take heed what thou doest: for this man is a Roman."

In those days, you didn't kick a free Roman around.

For all its importance, citizenship is what each country makes it.

Feeling

Hitler, for example, seemed to think a German was a German forever, no matter how long his family had lived outside the Fatherland.

The British once had a law that said, with certain exceptions, any child born outside the dominions was still a Briton if either his father, or even his grandfather, had been born inside them.

The United States always has a supply of these on hand. A sample: People whose U. S. citizenship has been revoked, such as for lying when they make out their naturalization papers, but who can't be deported because no other country will claim them either.

Any children born to Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier will have a quite different problem.

If Grace is still an American citizen when they are born, they will have two choices. They can be U. S. citizens, or they can remain in Monaco and, presumably, follow their father's princely business.

The Diamond Store of the Poconos 601 MAIN ST. STROUDSBURG PENNA.

IN A FIRE HALL: A SEA OF FACES. These are kindergarten pupils from Clearview School. They toured the Stroudsburg fire department building yesterday afternoon, guided by Mrs. Glenn Strunk, their teacher and Fire Chief Millard Marsh. Trip was part of a study unit on fire engines and firefighting; one of a series of actual visits to sites being studied.

Kindergarten Pupils Visit Fire House

"WHAT KIND of a ladder's that? And what's this box for?"

The questions came from a young boy. The scene was Stroudsburg's Fire Hall. The time: Yesterday afternoon.

The boy was a member of the Clearview School kindergarten class, a part of the Stroud Union District school system. Both morning and afternoon sessions visited the fire hall to get a first-hand glimpse of fire engines, ladders, various pieces of firefighting equipment.

Their teacher, Mrs. Glenn Strunk, had arranged the trip in coordination with the school principal, Ralph Knauf. Stroudsburg fire chief Millard Marsh was on hand to answer the questions at the fire house.

Chief Marsh demonstrated equipment used on the trucks, showed students the differences between the new and old trucks and allowed them to examine most pieces of equipment thoroughly. About 26 pupils from the morning session made the trip and an estimated 32 made the afternoon trip. Stroud Union bus drivers took the pupils to and from the fire house.

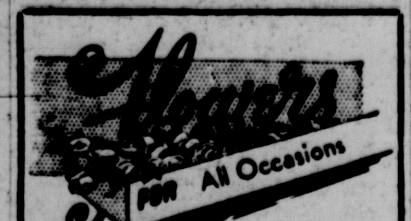

Trucks take 99 per cent of U.S. tobacco to market, 97 per cent of the milk and 91 per cent of the grain.

Danbury Citizens Give Overwhelming Approval To Flood Control, Parking

The extent to which some communities are going to provide essential civic improvements, including flood control, street improvements and off-street parking, is well illustrated in the results of a special election held last week in Danbury, Conn.

Danbury suffered heavy damage in the same Diane-inspired flood that caused heavy loss of life and property in the Pocono region. A second flood in October sent Danbury's total flood damage soaring above the 12 million dollar figure.

By a margin of nearly 6 to 1, the voters of that city last Thursday approved a $1,500,000 bond issue for flood control. It is the first step toward a program that eventually may bring approximately seven million dollars in federal and state aid for harnessing the Still River and for planning and redevelopment.

The city's electorate also sanctioned, by a 2 to 1 vote, a $400,000 bond issue for city street improvements and off-street parking. It will provide $250,000 for rehabilitation of worn streets, $50,000 for new public works department equipment and $100,000 for additional parking facilities.

City officials pointed out that the $100,000 will be repaid within a short time from revenue received from increased parking facilities.

They also hailed the flood control vote as signaling the start of a positive program to bring protection against floods to Danbury.

Monroe County has not been called upon to float a bond issue for flood control. It is interested, however, in any steps that another community takes in meeting a situation similar to one that exists here.

The Danbury News-Times, an associate of The Daily Record in Ottaway Newspapers-Radio, Inc., kept its readers advised of the pros and cons of the bond issue prior to the referendum. The overwhelming vote in favor of the proposal resulted.

It is fair to assume, therefore, that an informed public, when facing an important decision, will rise to meet the occasion and decide an issue on its merits.

'I Am A Press Camera; Without Me Public Is Blind, Yet Courts Bar Me'

(From National Press Photographer Magazine)
I am the Public Eye. I see for millions of people. I see for everyone who wants to look. I keep watch for the smallest child, the wisest oldster, the greatest leader and the most discouraged derelict.

The need for my vision was created when a man drew the first picture on a cave wall. Perhaps he drew a buffalo. And he was done, he saw the buffalo, although there really wasn't a buffalo there—just scratch marks on the stone. Right then, man's scope was extended beyond the limited horizon of his own presence. By means of pictures, the sights and dimensions of a scene far away or long ago could be transmitted to the ever-hungry mind of man.

I, the camera, am the fulfillment of that need. I see everywhere all the time. What The Public wants to see, I watch. I have seen the world at its moments of beauty, and at its times of terror. I have watched the awesome loneliness of two men on the stormy, air-thin peak of Mount Everest. I have peered into the ocean depths to bring back a glimpse of life beneath the sea. I have been to wars so that history may see the sufferings and the glories of those who wrote in the Book of Time.

I have seen a sunset flicker in the last moments of day, painting the clouds over a Pacific island. I have stared unblinkingly into the man-made sun that burst above that same island, devouring it with the hellish appetite of the H-Bomb.

I was there when a band of Marines raised the flag amid heavy fire on Iwo Jima. Most of that band are dead now, but they will be remembered because what I see is never forgotten.

But there are places where I am not allowed to look because a handful of old-fashioned men do not understand. I am welcomed in Church. I have served Justice with my accurate records. And yet they blindfold the Public Eye in The Public's courts.

to the councils of the mighty—wherever there is something which The Public has a right to see.

In one day, I can bring to anyone the sights from a hospital in New York, an airport in London, a riot-torn street in Cyprus, a frontier in Israel or a meeting with the Emperor of Japan.

Through me, the great hawking, squawling ever-busy giant called The Public can see beyond the mountains or around the corner. Without me, The Public is blind.

Science has sharpened my vision to a clarity far beyond the scope of human eyes. The scientists have given me speed, perception to the most minute detail, and an unflinching memory.

Other men have given me themselves for the Public Eye is but a tool for those whose destinies are wrapped in mine. I, the Press Camera, would be as blind as The Public I serve without a man to serve me.

In reality, I am slave to the photographer. But lacking me, he is an ordinary man. We are one, and what I have seen, what I will see, is caught only because we are there together.

George Sokolsky Says...

Love Overlooks Wealth In Cinderella-Like Weddings Such As Between Grace, Prince

Every morning, after breakfast, I am required to rest for one hour, after I am required to eat unsalted, unswollen and provender. Also, I am given a substitute for robust coffee which they tell me I shall become accustomed to if I live long enough.

It is in the mood of such a breakfast which no longer terminates with a long, black, Havana cigar, that I read newspapers. The question that has confronted me for several weeks is whether I should read the news or observe the wedding which is rapidly becoming the greatest show on Earth.

After all, the world does love romance and the outward manifestations of romance, and the reporters who write about Grimaldi as being royalty, while inaccurate because he belongs to no royal house, do stimulate a childhood interest in the Prince and Pauper and the Cinderella legends, although it does stretch the imagination somewhat to think of Grace Kelly as a Pauper or a Cinderella. As a matter of fact, if she stayed with MGM, she could have earned more than Grimaldi earns in Monaco but love overlooks such matters and in Monaco there is no income tax, only a 10 percent transaction tax.

So I read about the wedding, being in my second adolescence since I got well, and I find it very interesting to gaze at pictures which look so often like movie scenes directed by Cecil B. De Mille. Sometimes when I read what the American female correspondents write about the wedding, I cannot quite figure out whether Grimaldi is being married to Grace Kelly or to the female correspondents. I am sure all will be straightened out in due course. I do not know the parties at issue but were I well enough to travel, maybe I would have gone to the wedding as a reporter and written for you many tales of wonder and excitement, particularly about the de-caying European nobility which is so rapidly disappearing.

In fact, I think that the remaining crowned heads of Europe did wrong not to go to the wedding because then they could all be photographed together to show the world how few of them are left. The great Hapsburg family—the most important of all—of course, has no crown anywhere. The Hohenzollerns, who are upstarts, is rapidly descending into the proletariat. The House of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, now known as the House of Windsor, reigns in England but rules nowhere. The Romanovs are gone, except Mike who runs the best restaurant in Hollywood and who should really drop the whole thing now that he is doing so well in the eating line. What has become of the Hohenstaufen, I do not know. The Scandinavian royalty is rather recent, not going back too far into history, and they are socialistic kings which is a dichotomy.

The reason that the crowned heads stayed away is because in the yard and knowing where to find it. How good are Como and Gleason at this? A distinguished achievement could consist of retrieving a stick for a mopee. I'd like to see Jackie under contract to do that. Not that I am a TV ingrate. I appreciate being here. Como and Gleason are good actors, TOO! They also knew hard scratching.

"I have been asked if I would advise other pooches to take up screen careers. Only if they place applause, publicity and prestige above things commonly associated with a dog's life. Believe me, it's tough going in show business and you have to work like a dog at it. Yes, I have won fame and fortune as a canine, but every day I see some dog that I envy deeply... a plain, ordinary, unknown mutt scampering around AN OPEN LOT WITH ANOTHER MUTT AND NO AGENT YELLING 'IT AIN'T IN THE CONTRACT.' I thank you!"

curious passion for flattering oratory; give me the whistle of a kid on a spring day, the sound of a master's voice, a familiar footstep in a driveway!

"People go for awards, medals and plaques. They don't know the joy to be found in a beefbone, a hunk of raw meat, a chance to chase a locomotive just for the fun of it or an opportunity to chase a squirrel up a tree. It beats Peabody Awards all hollow. My fellow guests here, Jackie Gleason, Perry Como and others, say there's no business like show business. They are nuts... they have never romped a sandlot full of kids! They have never chewed a slipper to bits or ripped the fringe off a Turkish rug. My award is for a distinguished achievement on a screen. I think a distinguished achievement is hiding a bone out

Europe a royal highness snubs a serene highness, if that makes any difference. The Duchess of Windsor knows how snooty royalty can be. Protocol is very important to those who have nothing to live for but protocol and it is to be hoped that Grace Kelly when she becomes Grace Grimaldi will take her father's advice and not let herself be pushed around by protocol. However, among the remaining nobility of Europe this is about all that is left and it makes a big difference whether you are addressed as "your majesty," "your highness," "your grace," or "your excellency." It also makes a difference in salary, if the person involved still has a job. In most countries, the nobility is out of work in their profession.

In the 19th and early 20th centuries, it was customary for American girls of rich parents to marry into the European nobility. That is how Winston Churchill got his father and mother. Some of these marriages were successful; some were fiascoes because the American woman could not adjust to the ways of the European noblemen. After World War I, fewer such marriages occurred. But whenever one did take place, Americans just ate it up, as they do anything unusual like when an elevator girl becomes a Hollywood star and runs through five husbands before the studios forget to take up her option.

The biggest thing that has happened in this line in many decades is the Kelly-Grimaldi marriage because Grace Kelly makes a really grand show.

An active interest in civic affairs has brought its reward to Mrs. Claude W. Leister, of Stroudsburg RD 1, in many ways, but never in a material sense...

As one of the most active club women in the Poconos, she has seen many of her efforts bear fruit and is ever alert for new projects to undertake...

She is president of Stroudsburg Woman's Club, so is keenly interested in two of the club's major projects, flood control and establishing a home for the aged ill...

As co-chairman, with Walter Wyckoff, of Monroe County phase of last Fall's highly successful Community Chest drive, Mrs. Leister helped to organize the campaign on a different basis by enlisting services of more women in the solicitation...

The results were beyond expectations... Mer "drive" and personality were definite assets during critical days of the campaign. As everyone now knows, contributions (many of a sacrificial nature due to the flood) topped record goal...

Robert S. Allen Reports

Navy Wants To Explore For Oil On Pacific Island

Washington, April 18 — A new tideland oil battle is brewing that may soon be exploding stormy political head-lives in Congress.

This looming fray revolves around San Nicolas Island, 65 miles off the coast of Southern California, on which the Navy and Air Force have spent $100,000,000 for a guided missiles test base.

The Navy has come to believe there is oil on San Nicolas, and wants to conduct drillings preparatory to designating the island a federal oil reserve for wartime use. This backstage plan has the hearty approval of Rep. Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), potent chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

But the Navy's proposal has run head-on into vehement opposition in two other powerful quarters, as follows:

Interior Department — which contends private interests should develop San Nicolas' oil potential.

State of California — which fears that if the Navy gets this oil, the Navy will also establish a basis for claiming the oil rights between the island and the continental shelf. Continental shelf oil rights are a red-hot legal issue, and the tideland oil states are warily on guard against any encroachment by the federal government.

Spearheading this opposition is a bipartisan group headed by Representative Henry Sheppard (D-Calif.), chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee in charge of the Navy's budget, and Richard Wigglesworth, Mass., ranking Republican Committee-man.

They have kicked up such a ruckus that the Navy has agreed to restudy its plan for a possible "new recommendation."

Assistant Navy Secretary Raymond Fogler promised to do this at the conclusion of a caustic closed-door meeting, during which he and Captain Albert Miller, director of Naval Petroleum Reserves, were subjected to critical grilling.

Under Fire — Rep. Sheppard flatly challenged the Navy's right to make San Nicolas part of the Navy's oil reserves.

"Your legal interpretation," Sheppard told Captain Miller, "is not consistent with the statute you have referred to. That law applies to establish reserves, and you admit San Nicolas is not part of those reserves."

"The late Charles Francis Adams (Navy Secretary in the Hoover cabinet) held that if it were found on this island, it should be reserved for Navy use," argued Miller. "He laid down that policy in a letter to the White House way back on Feb. 16, 1933. It seems very clear to us that it has long been the Navy's intention to convert San Nicolas to a petroleum reserve in the event oil is established there."

Commander E. C. Smith, assistant to Captain Miller, asserted that private companies are not interested in developing the island's oil.

"I don't know of any commercial company willing to go out there, drill for oil, and if it's found, close down the well and save the oil for use in time of national emergency," Smith declared.

"Maybe the Navy won't always be on this island," pointed out Rep. Wigglesworth.

"The State of California has a vital interest in this matter," added Sheppard. "Tideland oil rights are involved here, and the state made a recent declaration relative to drilling for oil a certain distance from the shore."

"Under the continental shelf law," said Captain Miller, "any land which has been set aside by the Defense Department for military purposes is not subject to oil leasing."

This was sharply challenged by Sheppard who demanded of Fogler, "Don't you think that under the circumstances at this time, it would be proper for you to take another look at this question?"

Fogler immediately agreed. "Yes, I think that would be proper," he replied. "You will be interested to know that representatives of my office are right now conferring in the Gulf area with Interior Department representatives on this very problem. We will re-examine this proposal carefully and advise you within 30 to 60 days."

Note: The Navy is asking $529,000 for oil exploration on San Nicolas. The contemplated drilling is on an area approximately 20 square miles. The island is a fenced-in security installation, where air-to-air missiles are being tested. Also likely to be tested here are the strategic inter-continental ballistic missiles.

Monte Carlo Old Stuff To County Man

By Jim Riley

Monroe County has a resident who is truly interested in the wedding of Grace Kelly and the very wealthy Prince Rainier.

The gentleman in mention is Frank Reuman, who is a resident of Marshalls Creek. Frank, now 32 years of age, has visited Monte Carlo, home of the prince, on three occasions. He was at the famous resort spot in 1920, 1923 and again in 1933.

Reuman, a retired commercial lawyer, saw the prince's father on several occasions, but never actually met the former ruler of the gambling empire.

Frank, who once had his law offices at 290 and 302 Broadway, the old Dunn Building, has crossed the Atlantic Ocean 26 times. The trips were combination business and pleasure ventures to such countries as Germany, Denmark, Italy, France and Great Britain.

The Marshalls Creek resident used to commute to this locality from his New York home. He has been visiting the Poconos since 1932, but came here as a permanent resident after retiring from his large practice in 1943.

Frank can visualize just where the prince and his princess are traveling, the castle in which they plan to live and the various other items of importance contained in the abundance of press releases from the shores of the Mediterranean Sea.

Reuman reconstructed the Monte Carlo setup for this reporter. He placed the gambling halls, the stores, the famous rose bushes and the royal palaces. He told the manner in which the 364-acre empire is located on either side of a major highway which runs through southern France.

Frank undoubtedly retraces his steps while vacationing in Monte Carlo many years ago, while reading about and listening to the various exploits of the double wedding ceremony now in progress.

He will certainly enjoy reading about the now vastly over-publicized wedding more than virtually any other resident of Monroe County.

Reuman is enjoying fine health at the present time and his mind is sharp and to the point. Just as it was during his long career as a lawyer.

Frank has a wealth of knowledge at his disposal, both national and international. It would take a lengthy book to cover his trips to Europe and an even more lengthy book to describe the manner in which he enjoys life.

Dunlap Designated To Head School Jointure Council Asked To Plan For Approaches

MOUNT POCONO—Two major administrative posts have been filled, on a tentative basis, by the interim steering committee for the Pocono Mountains Jointure.

C. Willis Dunlap, Pocono Pines, has been designated supervising principal of the joint schools system.

David E. Nelson, Cresco RD 1 (Paradise township), has been chosen to serve as part-time secretary for the potential joint board.

Neither appointment is finally official. Both must be approved, or rejected, by the full joint board—made up of members of boards from eight districts—when the jointure is formed in July.

Dunlap is now supervising principal of the Tobyhanna Township School system at Pocono Pines. He received his bachelor's degree at East Stroudsburg

State Teachers College; went on to get a Master's degree in secondary education at Columbia University.

He taught in the elementary school at Tobyhanna township school from 1923 to 1930. From 1933 to 1936 he was a high school teacher in that system.

From 1936 to 1956 (the present time) he has been supervising principal at the Pocono Pines school. He has had 31 years teaching experience and 20 years in a supervisory capacity.

Nelson is a veteran of 10 years experience as a member of the Paradise Township School Board. He has served as secretary of the Paradise board since 1948. He is employed in an official capacity by Pocono Manor.

Announcement of the tentative appointments was made last night by the interim steering committee following a meeting at the Mount Pocono School.

The Pocono Mountains Joint School District will include Barrett, Coolbaugh, Jackson, Paradise, Pocono, Tobyhanna and Tunkhannock townships and Mount Pocono borough school district. The jointure has been officially approved by the county and the State as well as all districts involved in the combination.

Council Asked To Plan For Approaches

STROUDSBURG Borough Council was asked last night to take steps to assure that the approaches to the proposed permanent bridge on W. Main St. will be at least 50 feet in width between curbs.

S. L. Crook and R. M. Sherr of the Highway Department's Allentown District office informed the councilmen the department is planning to erect a 50 foot span over Pocono Creek on W. Main St. and that the approaches must be at least this wide.

No Date

The state officials did not say when plans for the proposed four-lane span would be ready for bids. Nor did they conjecture when construction would begin. However, they pointed out that orders for steel beams often take as much as 22-months before shipment.

Council, meeting in special session, directed Borough Engineer Edward C. Hess to study the request and report back at the next council session. Hess will survey the estimated cost to the borough for curbs and gutters and right-of-way damages involved in widening the street.

The borough engineer explained that the request calls for the widening on W. Main St. at the junction of that street and Dreher Ave. on the west, and to Elm St. on the east.

Labor Official Shows State Disabled Persons Troubles

POCONO MANOR—John R. Torquato, labor and industry secretary, said today that the state is "losing ground" in its attempts to rehabilitating disabled persons.

"Even though the state rehabilitation Bureau is in the midst of the greatest expansion it has ever seen we are actually losing ground in our efforts to care for thousands of disabled individuals," Torquato said.

Statement

The secretary made the statement in an address prepared for delivery tonight at a regional conference of the National Rehabilitation Assn. in this mountain resort area.

Church Leaders Warned Over Soviet Problem

BUCK HILL FALLS—Western church leaders last night were called upon to recognize that Christians in the Soviet Union cannot be expected to be disloyal to their government in political and economic matters.

Dr. Eugent Carson Blake, president of the National Council of Churches, stressed that in such affairs "the churches in the Soviet Union are not our allies and must be accounted at least as loyal to their government as we are to ours."

"We cannot expect them to be a conscience to the Soviet Union as we ought to be to our own nation," Dr. Blake told 125 representatives to the U. S. Conference of the World Council of Churches, now in session at The Inn here.

"This fundamental distinction is vital to charting our position and relationship with the Soviet churchmen when they visit us (in America) in June," Dr. Blake continued.

Dr. Blake, who recently headed a delegation of American church leaders on a tour of the Soviet Union, said this distinction must also be considered in any other future relationships with Russian Christians both within and without the World Council of Churches.

Panel

Serving as a panel chairman at an open session of the WCC meet, Dr. Blake made these remarks while pointing out there are at least two major contests going on in the world today.

"One is the contest for the minds and hearts of men," he said, "which is between humanistic materialists and those who believe in God and man's duty to Him."

"In this contest," he continued, "the churches of the Soviet Union may be counted upon as allies of our churches here in the United States."

"These churches in the Soviet Union are on the front line of that contest and are under great pressure from a party and government which is committed to atheistic materialism," Dr. Blake said.

"Anything we can do to strengthen them in that witness we ought to do," he added.

However, Dr. Blake then observed there is also the economic and political contest which, on one hand, involves the Soviet Union and her satellites and the United States and the associated western democracies on the other.

It is in this contest between Russian totalitarianism and communism and the free societies of the west that we must expect Soviet churchmen to remain loyal to their government, Dr. Blake emphasized.

Sessions of the World Council meeting, which has brought together representatives of 30 affiliated denominations, will continue at The Inn through tomorrow.

At 9:15 a.m. today, WCC leaders will unveil a plaque in the library at The Inn commemorating the first meeting of the Provisional Committee of the World Council ever held in America.

PMVB Elects Same Slate Of Officers

POCONO Mountains Vacation Bureau celebrated the close of "a highly successful seventh annual Hotel and Restaurant Show" last night with a gala banquet at the Penn Stroud.

The Bureau reelected its same slate of officers, headed by President Harry Ahnert, who announced attendance at the show was the "largest in its history . . . and all exhibitors said they intend to show again next year."

Ahnert congratulated Horace Strunk, executive secretary of PMVB; Carolyn Reimer, executive secretary of the Northeast Pennsylvania Restaurant Association; Guy Nicolas, Eric Schuchard and Marion Myers for "a job brilliantly done."

Remarks

Harold Swenson, State director of vacation and travel development, Department of Commerce, told members that Rep. Van D. Yetter's House Bill 320, setting aside $300,000 for resort and travel promotion, is now awaiting Gov. Leader's signature. If signed, the bill, as amended by the Senate, would allow funds for promotion

CAP Joins In Search For Plane Feared Lost In State

AVOCA — A Civil Air Patrol search, headed by Maj. William A. Bechtel of Stroudsburg, got underway here yesterday for a missing plane carrying a Broadway theatrical producer and his wife.

However, at nightfall the CAP still had found no trace of Gordon Pollock and his wife. Their Cessna 180 was first reported missing last Saturday when Pollock radioed he was having difficulty at an altitude of 700 feet over Lake Erie.

At the time, Pollock was headed for Teeterboro, N. J., from Detroit, Maj. Bechtel said.

The CAP's Pennsylvania Wing, ordered into the search Sunday by the 46th Air Rescue Squadron at

"within a few days," Swenson said.

Besides Ahnert, the reelected officers are: Paul Asure and Tom Robinson, vice presidents; Elvira Carlton, secretary; Elwood Huffman, treasurer.

Francis Shinn was toastmaster for the banquet. Tommy Cullen's orchestra provided music during dinner and for after-dinner dancing.

Basking sharks are relatively harmless.

California had a population gain of 18.1 per cent between April 1, 1950 and July 1, 1954.

Westover Field, set up headquarters at Scranton State Airport at 10 a. m. yesterday.

The area search is part of a statewide hunt being conducted under the direction of Col. Philip N. Neuweller, Allentown, commander of the CAP's Pennsylvania Wing.

Bechtel explained that, while it was feared the plane was lost in Lake Erie, hopes have been expressed that the plane may have landed in some other portion of the state.

Bechtel, reporting that the hunt will resume today, said the search will extend from Avoca westward toward Bradford, covering a large area of rugged, mountainous terrain.

The first plane took off the field here at 11:30 yesterday morning, Bechtel reported. The craft, loaned to the CAP by the Worthington Mower Co., was piloted by 1st Lt. Al Van Pelt of Stroudsburg.

During yesterday's operations' two Stroudsburg CAP officers, Capt. Rudy Blitz and Warrant Officer Frank Rehm, had to make a forced landing in a corn field near West Pittston. Both men escaped injury and their L-16 was not damaged.

Other Monroe County CAP officers who participated in the search yesterday included Lt. Philip Hardaker, Lt. Col. Clifford Okuno, and Lt. Russell Dotter.

Pedestrian Struck By Automobile

A 29-YEAR-OLD pedestrian was reported in satisfactory condition at General Hospital last night with injuries suffered when he was struck by a car in East Stroudsburg yesterday morning.

LeRoy Weiss of Gilbert was struck by a car, driven by John Miller, 40, of 489 N. Courtland St., as he was walking on Burton St. near the intersection of Lackawanna Ave., borough police reported. Weiss had just come off the night shift at the Line Material Co.

Broken Ribs

Police said Weiss suffered seven broken ribs and cuts and bruises of the arms and face.

Miller told police he was on his way to work at Line Material and had stopped his car on Lackawanna Ave. before making a left turn into Burton St. It was in making the turn that the car hit Weiss. Police quoted Miller as saying he did not see Weiss.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

The glowering sky, the sporadic downpours and the muddy streams were enough to bring back memories of the flood but there was more.

The members of the University Women's board, for instance, were filled with awe, meeting at the James home, to think how much they have done to restore it. Everything was so clean and scrubbed and bright that it scarcely seemed possible that the board members would all have been sitting under water at flood time.

However, even yet flood victims have their heartaches, as when a salvaged table that's been scrubbed and scraped and rubbed and oiled back to condition suddenly splits right in two, or when the fresh paint starts peeling from the still-drying wood.

We do forget so soon, particularly the long-drawn-out job the people have had in restoration. I think they deserve a few medals. The fact that one of the poets of call on the Kitchen Tour next week will be Garnet Rumney's kitchen should maybe get a two star billing.

Another thing that brings back the flood only two vividly is a trip through the rural flood area where bare rocks and banded trees still bear mute witness to the fury. The trouble is, for people living on the other side of the devastation, that everyone of their guests arrives talking about the flood, and it's hard on the hosts to get any other topic of conversation going.

State President To Speak At Co. Federation Of Club Meeting Monday At Onawa

Mrs. Samuel J. McCartney, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs, will be the guest speaker at the dinner session of the Monroe County Federation of Women's Clubs to be held Monday night at Onawa Lodge, Mountainhome.

During her term of office, Mrs. McCartney has visited every county federation except Monroe County and her visit here will complete her tour. She had been scheduled to speak here at the county meeting last September, cancelled because of the flood.

Because there was no Fall meeting, Mrs. Foster Minnich, county federation president, is anxious to have a large representation from each of the five member clubs at the meeting this Monday.

The meeting will begin with registration from 2:30 to 3. The afternoon session will feature the yearly reports given by the presidents of the member clubs of the county. Mrs. Wallace Kern, vice president of the northeast district, will speak on the international convention in Geneva, Switzerland.

The dinner is scheduled for 6 p.m. and Mrs. McCartney will be the speaker. Reservations for the dinner may be made with Mrs. Foster Minnich, Stroudsburg, 509 or with Mrs. June Young, Cresco, 6691. The Barrett Community Club is one of the newest clubs in county federation.

Mrs. McCartney has served in county and state federation work for many years, and is a member of the Women's Club of Bala Cynwyd, the Women's Community Club of Narberth and the Hathaway Shakespeare Club of Philadelphia. She is on the nominating committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She is a member of the recreation board and is a member-secretary of the Narberth School board. She is a member of the commonwealth committee of the Women's Medical College, and promoted the restoration of Independence Hall. She is married to an electrical engineer and has two children, both grown, and three grandchildren.

Women's Guild Studies Duty To World Trade

The Women's Guild of Zion Ev. and Reformed Church had Dr. John C. Appel of the faculty of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College as their guest speaker. In his talk on "Foreign Trade", he pointed out the relationship of Christianity to world trade. He emphasized the responsibility of Christians for the living conditions, capital, natural resources of other countries and the moral obligation to work for the good of everyone.

The opening devotions were conducted by Mrs. Marian Bonser, Mrs. Bertha Risley and Mrs. Ethel Dickinson. At the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Claude Beidler, $5 was donated to the Cancer drive. Delegates were named to the regional meeting to be held April 25 at Pocono Lake, and two delegates to the Cedar Crest conference in July.

Christian service projects include two packages to be sent overseas for father and son and father and daughter. Sewing projects were also distributed. Rev. Frank H. Blatt announced the minister's conference to be held at the local church on May 8 and 9. The Women's Guild will serve two dinners and a luncheon for them. Mrs. Fred Quig reported on the Synodical meeting held at the Stroudsburg church.

Refreshments were served by the team captained by Mrs. Woodling and Mrs. Heller.

The program featured a fashion show presented by the girls of the home economics classes who modeled the garments they had completed this year under the supervision of Mrs. Grace Wildrick. A committee of judges awarded three PTA prizes.

Prizes for the best garment went to Inge Wandschneider, ninth grade, first; Donna Fisher, tenth grade, second; best modeling, Evangeline Parker, eleventh grade; best completed outfit, Patricia Knowles, tenth grade. Judges were Mrs. Elmer Shaffer, Mrs. Harvey Keiper, Mrs. Ralph Dunlap and Mrs. Glenmore Hayes.

Judges for the seventh grade were 12th grade girls.

Following the fashion show the boys of the shop course under the direction of Floyd Miller, displayed articles including coffee tables, TV tables, gossip bench lamps, desk, bird houses and feeders, spun brass compote dish and candle holders and many other items they had made. Although no prizes were awarded there was great interest in the exhibit.

THE
SHOPPER

If you know Gracie Grace, you'll not be at all surprised that her German shepherd dog has one of the most unusual names ever bestowed upon a canine. The six month old aristocrat answers to "Chris"—short for "Christina," in honor of the Christmas season when the pup took over the Grace household.

Many of Gracie's friends had the opportunity to meet Chris this past Tuesday when a surprise housewarming was held at the Grace's adorable new ranch home, just off Chipperfield Drive. It's a lovely turquoise home with a flamingo colored door, expansive windows offering friendly views of the neighborhood, and a fireplace that's as snug as a dollar bill in a Scotsman's pocket. Naturally you assume without any even saying that Frigidario is the BIG name in Gracie's very up-to-the-minute knotty pine kitchen, and that Wyckoff fabrics add whimsy and glamour to the window treatments... and you're right!

Gracie has added a few touches of her own that didn't escape compliments either. In the bathroom, for instance, she has a plastic drinking "glass" that has been touched up with pink, gray, and gold paint in a design exactly matching the draperies. And on the hearth is a big bottle that has been painted black and spangled with gold dots. It looks, as one guest described it, "like an expensive Mexican thing from Italy." (If this description doesn't make sense to you, it didn't to us either—but it conveys the general idea.) Also the charming "wrought iron" pitcher that holds a growing plant on the divider between kitchen and hallway, isn't wrought iron at all, but a battered silver pitcher which Gracie played with as a child and decided to paint a dull black. The entire house is perfect... but it's these little extra touches that make it a real home.

Wondering what the office girls gave Gracie at her housewarming? A big turquoise frying pan by General Electric—one of those remarkable cooking aids that does all the thinking, thanks to its precise regulation. No wonder someone suggested that our next party take the form of a fried chicken dinner!... One of the reasons why the party was such a huge success, was the fact that the honored guest was so thoroughly surprised. Having been talked out of a trip to Bangor, and induced to stay home to catch up with the housework, she wasn't exactly dressed for guests. Helen Mitchell, our store cashier, earned herself the title of "The Guest Did Most Like to Have Every Tuesday" by taking over at the ironing board and smoothing off a few pillow cases and such in a twinkling. The others (including myself) weren't nearly as obliging. We just sat and watched—enjoying our consciences by telling Helen how wonderful she was.

Here's a special invitation to listen to our regular Wyckoff Shopper radio program at 9:45 this morning. If all goes well, our guest will be fashion expert Jonni Walker, who will serve as commentator at this evening's fashion show at Stroudsburg High School. You'll surely be there, won't you?

'Hope' Among Key Words When Scientific Discussions Take Place On Cancer Fight

"Seven Hope Cases" in Monroe County, pointing to the fact that cancer can be cured through early diagnosis and early treatment. The stories of these seven men and women are typical of thousands all over America today. Names of patients have been changed.)

By Leonard Randolph
IF THERE is one key word in any discussion of cancer today, it undoubtedly is the word "hope."

There is "hope," cancer surgeons and scientists say, that a cure—perhaps a preventive—for cancer will be found. Once there was no such dream. Cancer was considered a flat, final matter. Once a diagnosis had been made, the door closed. And the rest of the patient's life was spent in waiting.

Today there is great hope for nearly every cancer patient whose disease is discovered soon enough. Through x-ray treatments, the use of some new chemicals and, primarily, through surgery, modern science has made hope an honest and tangible thing for the cancer victim.

For years cancer specialists, men who have spent their whole lives working toward victory over the disease, have been trying to emphasize the importance of early diagnosis and treatment. They have been met much of the time by a solid wall of mental blocks, not only among laymen and cancer victims but in the medical profession as well.

Impossible
It would be impossible to tell how many Monroe County men and women have lost their lives because they considered cancer a dirty word. Refusing to believe they could be saved, many of these persons have deliberately avoided physical examinations—in fear they might have cancer.

Frank G. was one of these. In his 72 years, Frank had seen most of his friends die, one by one. The variety of causes was wide—heart disease, accidents, pneumonia.

Two of them had died of cancer. Neither had ever known he had the disease. And both cancers had been discovered in highly advanced stages. Both were beyond the hopeful scope of surgery.

In 1951 Frank developed a cancerous growth in the lower section of the large bowel. One of the "seven danger signals" outlined by the Cancer Society soon showed up—a gradual change in bowel habits which had been well-regulated over a period of months. The change soon became more sharply noticeable.

Frank made his own diagnosis—and nearly took his own life. Indirectly, because of it. A friend of his, a few years his junior, had died of bowel cancer which had spread through his body. The symptoms had been the same.

Without seeing a doctor, Frank began to grow more and more mentally despondent. He was afraid to see a physician—and he knew this. It was not until nearly a month after he noticed the change in bowel habits that he was finally forced to see his doctor.

The reason he made the appointment was a simple one. He was experiencing acute pain in the bowel and lower abdomen. Something had to be done, he said, finally.

So far Frank had found no rectal bleeding, no blood deposits in stools. Yet the pain was there. His doctor sent him to General Hospital of Monroe County.

Examinations at the hospital showed the existence of a tumor in the large bowel. It was still, apparently, in the early stage. But the wall of the intestine had become highly inflamed. It was swollen and constricted and it was this which had caused the pain.

Lucky
Frank was lucky. But he didn't think so. When the surgeon talked with him, explaining the necessity for removal of the tumor, Frank at first refused. It wouldn't do any good, he said. I'm going to die.

Slowly and carefully, the surgeon and Frank's doctor explained to him that the tumor might prove to be benevolent or non-malignant. Even if it turned out to be non-cancerous, it still would continue to cause the severe pain if it were left in the bowel wall.

Frank finally consented to the operation. Although it is a serious operation, in one sense, Frank's bowel resection proved totally successful and remarkably easy as such things go.

The tumor was malignant. It was in an extremely early phase, small and comparatively checked. There were no other signs of cancer in the bowel.

More than five years have gone by since then. Month by month Frank began to lose his deeply-ingrained fear of cancer—and the fear that it would come back again. His latest physical checkup last month showed no sign of cancer in the 76-year-old man's body.

For his age, Frank is a nearly-perfect physical specimen. He had one severe cold during the past winter. Other than that—nothing.

His doctor feels certain now that Frank will live at least another five to eight years.

At 76 Frank G. is one of the best arguments in Monroe County for the fact that there is hope for the cancer victim. And, through lack of knowledge, Frank almost argued himself out of life.

Sports Trail --

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, April 18 (U-P)—Bobby Bragan didn't look like a fellow who had butterflies in his stomach, but they were there, he said, fluttering around and dipping and looping the loop.

He was standing in front of the Pittsburgh Pirate dugout at the Polo Grounds before the game marking his debut as a major league manager. Across the field another new manager, Bill Rigney, was holding court. In fact, it was a new look all around, even to the park, whose signs now urge you to drink beer, instead of smoke cigarettes.

Bragan was talking of this and that, outwardly as calm as a millpond, but he insisted he was jittery.

"I have more butterflies than I had in 1946 when I played my first major league game right here," he said. "I was playing for the Phillies and we won on Gus Suh's home run."

Nervous

"I was nervous when I took the job as manager, didn't know if I could do it or not. I asked Leo Durocher and he told me not to worry. He said anybody could manage a team four days out of the week."

"Fresco Thompson said," a bystander commented, "that there were 50 games a season a manager couldn't possibly win, and 50 he couldn't lose. That leaves 54 that a manager has to manage."

"That's the same idea," Bragan agreed. "Most of the managing isn't done on the field, anyway. It's giving the players the confidence that their jobs are safe as long as they produce. When they are insecure, and the situation is cloudy, they can't do so well."

"You have a pretty good young pitcher in this Bob Friend, don't you?"

"Yes. We were having a discussion on a bus on the rating of National League pitchers, and the general idea was that Friend belonged right behind Robin Roberts."

Someone mentioned the plastic helmet the manager was wearing. He removed it for inspection. "The only objection comes from the outfielders," he said. "They have trouble sometimes pulling down their glasses."

It was mentioned that some outfielders needed plastic helmets for protection from fly balls.

Defense

"Not ours," Bragan said emphatically. "We have three, maybe four or five, outfielders you don't have to apologize for. I don't think we'll be giving away as many runs as the Pirates used to give away. I don't know how many we'll score, though."

"We're a young team, you know. Do you know that some of these fellows never heard of Fred Merkle?"

"That's nothing," a fellow said. "There's a statue of Honus Wagner in Pittsburgh, and some young fellows were looking at it trying to figure out who it represented. They finally decided it must be Ralph Kiner. It's a new generation, and they grew up under the Kiner influence."

"Did you ever catch before you came up to the majors?"

"Yes, a couple of years. Maybe I should have stuck to catching and I might have stayed up longer, as I can't run. But then, when I came up the Phillies needed a shortstop, not a catcher, so I don't know."

The band was lining up for the march to the flagpole, so the reporters shook hands with Bragan and wished him luck. He thanked them. It wasn't necessary for him to add that he's new here.

Illinois has won six NCAA gymnastic championships.

Hornell Ace Rookie Bat King Of '55

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 18 (U-P)—Francis T. Boniar of Uniontown, Pa., outfielder now with the Wichita Falls club in the Class B State League, was the rookie champion batter of 1955 in the minor leagues.

The 23-year-old youngster, in his first season after a three-year hitch in the Army, batted .435 in 90 games with Hornell of the Pony League to sweep the honors as the best rookie batter and the best over-all hitter in the minors.

Opens In 'C'

Boniar opened last season with Bakersfield in the Class C California loop, batting .290 in 44 contests. Shifted to the Class D Pony loop he had 155 hits in 356 tries, for 243 total bases which included 32 doubles, 1 triple and 18 home runs. He batted in an even 100 runs, and fanned only 7 times while drawing 37 walks. For the entire campaign, in 518 turns at bat, he fanned only 19 times, batted in 125 runs, drew 56 walks and stole 14 bases.

The batting champ, winner of both the Spalding and Hitterich & Bradsky Co. awards for his hitting feat, is one of 10 children, weighs 190 and is 6-foot-1.

George M. Trautman, president of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues, announced Boniar as the victor after thumbing through last season's records.

IBC Announces Plans For Heavyweight Eliminations

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, April 18 (U-P)—Promoter Jim Norris today revealed plans for a series of heavyweight elimination bouts to provide a September challenger for champion Rocky Marciano—or a new champ if Marciano retires.

Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, patched up his differences with Al Weill, Marciano's manager, at a "peace dinner" last night. He is awaiting a meeting between Weill and Marciano scheduled for Friday at Macdon, Ga., before taking any positive steps.

Feeling

"There is a feeling around that Rocky may retire," said Norris. "I don't share that feeling. Our position is this. If we can show Rocky where he can draw a $500,000 gate in September, we think he will fight. It is up to us to come up with a good challenger. We expect a definite word from Rocky within 10 days."

Norris mentioned a May 9 match at Miami between Johnny Holman and Bob Baker as one in a series of eliminations. He said he would try to make a Floyd Patterson-Hurricane Jackson fight as soon as he knows definitely what Marciano will do. He also said Archie Moore, the light-heavy champ, also was very much in the picture as soon as he had completed his defense against Yolande Pompey in London in June.

Nats Outfielder Gets Army Orders

WASHINGTON, April 18 (U-P)—Opening day was the last day of the season for Washington outfielder Jerry Schoonmaker. He received orders to report to Ft. Sill, Okla., on April 22.

Schoonmaker, 22-year-old bonus player from the University of Missouri, is an artillery lieutenant in the Army reserve. He played in only 20 games last year, his first with the Senators, and batted .152.

Chick Izaya, Dartmouth College skier, won the NCAA slalom title the last two years.

Little Loop To Ink Boys Tomorrow

REGISTRATIONS for Stroudsburg Little League will be held tomorrow at Stroudsburg High School gymnasium from 7 to 8:30 p. m. President Jack Mullins announced last night.

Mullins emphasized that boys who registered last year need not sign up again this year in order to be eligible for Little League participation.

Must Be Registered

Mullins noted, however, that no boy will be eligible to play or try out for bonafide Little League teams unless he is properly registered.

Boys planning to sign up tomorrow must be accompanied by one of his parents and have his birth certificate.

The age bracket for boys is 8 to 12 years inclusive.

Minor League Show Decline Seventh Year

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 18 (U-P)—Minor league baseball heads into the 1956 campaign with 27 circuits and 209 clubs in operation, the seventh straight year a decided drop has occurred in each category.

Since the 1955 season, six loops made up of 34 teams have disbanded — two after being in operation a half-century. Two others merged into a single league, and a new one was formed.

Back in 1943, in the midst of the war, only 10 leagues and 66 teams were, in the minor-league fold. Then, the boom started, and by 1949, the peak was reached with 59 leagues and 444 clubs scattered all over the country.

Then came the decline. In 1950 there were 58 leagues. The total dropped to 50 in 1951, to 43 in 1952, to 38 in 1953, to 36 in 1954, and 33 last season. This year's six-league loss is the greatest since seven dropped out between the 1951 and 1952 seasons.

Casualty

The Kitty League, first Class D circuit in the country when it was organized in 1903, was among this year's casualties, as was the Class C Cotton States loop which had been in existence around 50 years. Others tossing in the towel were the Class D Appalachian, the Class C Piedmont, and the Class B Piedmont and Tri-State.

The 38 teams in those loops at-

Scranton To Face STC Here Saturday

SCRANTON — This weekend the University of Scranton's spring sports program will get underway, with two of the four teams playing initial contests today and tomorrow. The tennis team will host the netters of Ursinus College of Collegeville, Pa. The match will take place at Weston Park, home court of the Royals, starting at 3 p.m. today.

To Meet Warriors

The diamond nine of the University will travel to East Stroudsburg State Teachers College to play the teachers in their inaugural contest.

Coached by Pete Carlesimo and Dan Colan, the Royals have been holding regular workouts here in Scranton and the squad has been rounding into shape quite rapidly.

The starting alignment has not been named as yet; but the coaching staff may go with Tommy Oltorik on the mound. The Royals will leave Scranton around noon Saturday and will tangle with the Stroudsburg nine at 2 p.m.

On Monday the Royals will play host to the lads from Bloomsburg STC at Schantz Memorial Stadium.

tracted a total of 1,502,033 fans last season, an average of only 39,527, which George M. Trautman, president of the National Assn. of Professional Baseball Leagues, said "just isn't enough."

Trautman estimated a Class D club should attract 50,000, Class C 60,000 to 65,000, and Class B at least 75,000 to survive.

ST. LOUIS, April 18 (U-P)—The St. Louis Cardinals sold outfielder Archie Wilson to Toronto today. They got Wilson from that International League Club last fall. Wilson, 32, hit .323 this spring, but appeared infrequently because of a chipped bone in his left wrist.

Michigan State will meet Indiana, Purdue, Wisconsin and Kansas State in home football games next fall.

County In Action

MONROE County League will roll today at Harmon's Recreation, East Stroudsburg, starting at 9 p.m. The schedule:

Alleys one and two—CLU Club vs Johnny's Inn. Alleys three and four—Cramer Lumber Co. vs Bessecker's Diner. Alleys five and six—Gem Lunch vs Al Bessecker's Diner.

Argentine style or Italian style — take your pick at the flick of a zipper! The sheen gabardine side of this unusual action jacket features a smart new touch called the "Gauchito stitch." Often seen in fine leather work... never before on cloth... it's a bold masculine note. On the reverse side — Continental fashion! The subtle new "ombre" effect in choice Italian gingham, imported exclusively by Berkey. Here are two handsome jackets in one — another great Berkey value!

Dim View By Trade

VANCOUVER, April 18 (AP)—The fur trade here is taking a dim view of a London report that bearskin hats of Britain's guards regiments may be made of Russian grizzly hides. The traditional Canadian black bear supply is dwindling, experts say, but orders can still be filled in Canada.

Companies Clash Over Gas Warfare

TRENTON, N. J., April 18 (AP)—Representatives of major oil companies and retail gasoline dealers opposed each other again today over the merits of the latest proposal for solving New Jersey's gasoline price war—which would license all mechanics and attendants.

John Dressler, executive secretary of the New Jersey Gasoline Retailers Assn., praised the new plan on grounds it would make driving safer and preserve competition in the business. Oil company representatives said the plan would "stagnate" the industry and do nothing for safety.

Seeds Planted Indoors May Die If Allowed To Dry Out; Plant Sweet Spanish Onions

IF YOU'VE STARTED your seeds indoors, keep in mind that a single drying out may kill all the germinating seeds. See that the soil is moist at all times, but never overwater. This may rot the seeds. Flat seeds generally give better results if you sow them on the edge since they are less in danger of rotting before they can germinate. Beans and similar seeds can be sown on edge with the "eye" downward. In this position it's easier for them to thrust their "toots" downward and raise the cotyledons ("food reservoirs") about the surface of the soil.

Seeds with hard outer coats take quite a long time to sprout because water cannot get to the embryo. Soaking seeds of morning glories—and other stubborn seeds—in lukewarm water from 6 to eight hours before sowing them, will be helpful. Chipping the seeds of sweet peas, gives satisfactory results. Just take a file and "nick" the seed coat until you see white meat. You can have a lot of fun growing plants from seeds. Not all seeds are treated alike, so don't be disappointed if your seeds don't sprout immediately.

Sweet Spanish Onions
Ever raise any? You buy the plants from your seedsmen, and all you have to do is set the plants out. A bunch (anywhere from 50 to 100 plants) will plant a 30 ft. row, and a single plant will produce big onions weighing two pounds or more. These onions do best in a loose soil with ample moisture. Last summer's dry weather produced smaller onions and many gardeners complained about the hot taste. Because growth was checked all the sulfur (that's what makes you cry when you peel onions) was concentrated into the smaller bulbs, accounting for the hot taste. Any vegetable that does not normally grow well (as in dry years) will have poor quality. That's why you often get hot radishes and bitter lettuce.

Home Landscaping
Now's a good time to be thinking about sprucing up the front of your home. Most shrubs will grow in any soil where perennials will grow. And when figuring your space, keep in mind the shrub's mature growth, not the size when planted. Shrubs that grow 3 ft. wide need 3 feet from center to center. Larger shrubs need 5 feet. Don't plant the shrub next to the foundation. Keep them at least 3 feet away as the wall acts like a blotter and will soak up the water and will dry out your plants.

Community Chorus Explains 'Brigadoon' As Guest Of Kiwanis Club At Regular Meeting

STROUDSBURG Kiwanis Club was given details of the production of the musical, "Brigadoon," and also heard several of the selections at the meeting at the Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday afternoon.

The Community Chorus under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club, were guests and furnished the entertainment under the direction of Dr. Earl Willhoite, the conductor. William P. Wells, Kiwanis president, welcomed the chorus. Peter Wyckoff, president of the chorus, spoke for the singers expressing appreciation for being invited to the meeting.

Appreciation

Willhoite expressed appreciation of assistance given in preparation for the production of "Brigadoon" May 4 and 5. He mentioned particularly Mrs. Karon Roth and Gilbert Dunning. The latter told the story of the production.

A surprise feature was the presentation of a miniature grandfather's clock by the chorus to Willhoite in recognition of five years service conducting the chorus. Praise was also given the chorus for its fine productions.

There were approximately 40 members of the chorus in attendance at the meeting. There were solo numbers by leading members of the cast now in rehearsal, also chorus selections. The singers were commended for their efforts.

The first quarterly birthday party of the Kiwanis was staged with a large representation of birthdayites present. Harry Sutton occupied the prize chair and received a necktie as a gift. A secreted silver dollar marked the chair. The birthday cake was donated to the General Hospital patients.

A telegram was read from Robert O. Schell Jr., who is in St. Louis, Mo., for a music study meeting. Schell is a leader in the proposed "K" Day observance early next month.

Ticket Sales

Jack Lantz, in charge of tickets for "Brigadoon," announced that sale of tickets has increased materially the past week. The prize for sale of the largest number of tickets was awarded Budd Van Horn. Lantz stated that names of purchasers of patrons' tickets should be turned in to him next week.

An interesting song period was conducted by Willhoite and Numa J. Snyder, during which happy birthday was sung for E. H. Laesser in addition to the members of the birthday party participants. The chorus sang a thank you verse to the Kiwanians for inviting them to the session.

Rev. Dr. P. N. Wohlson DD, visited the chorus and Kiwanians to attend St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church next Sunday at 7:30 p. m. when the chapel choir of Muhlenberg College consisting of 40 voices will give a concert of religious selections.

Guests welcomed included Daniel Miller, new field executive of Boy Scouts of America now located here, and Van D. Yetter, of Craigs Meadows, local member of the Assembly at Harrisburg.

Farmers May Obtain Refund On Gasoline

UNDER A NEW law signed by President Eisenhower on April 2, farmers may obtain a refund of the two cents per gallon Federal Excise Tax on gasoline used for farming purposes.

F. P. Graham, director of the 20-county Scranton Internal Revenue District, said the first refunds would be made after June 30 to cover gasoline used on the farm during the first six months of 1956. Thereafter, refunds will be made yearly for the period July 1 to June 30.

Farmers eligible for refunds of the gasoline tax must file claim on Form 2242 between June 30 and October 1. Forms will be available at Internal Revenue offices and from county farm agents after June 1.

Farm Purposes

Director Graham emphasized that the tax refund applies only to gasoline used for farming purposes. No refunds are allowed on gasoline used off the farm or used

Remedies For Two Mysterious Diseases Aired At Conference Of American College Physicians

AP Science Reporter

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

LOS ANGELES, April 18 (AP)—Remedies for two mysterious diseases that sabotage health and sometimes kill were described today to the American College of Physicians.

Both are often hard to diagnose, and often masquerade as other diseases. And both may be more common than once supposed.

One takes many forms, and is known as the malabsorption syndrome. The body for some unknown reason fails to absorb some essential vitamin or other food material, even though the diet is perfect.

Lose Weight

Victims may lose weight, develop diarrhea, weakness, and wasting diseases of malnutrition like sprue or celiac disease, depending on what foodstuff is being rejected, explained Dr. Keith J. R. Wightman, University of Toronto faculty of medicine.

Two remedies overcome it, he reported at the opening of the annual meeting of the college, composed of 8,900 internists. Internists are specialists in medical diagnosis and treatment.

Taking daily tablets of the hormone cortisone is one remedy. The other is to exclude gluten, a protein found in most kinds of flour, from the diet. Why either one works is not known. They correct the trouble, not cure it.

This ailment is rather rare, "but may be more common than we think," Dr. Wightman said. It is sometimes fatal. A tendency to develop it seems to run in families.

The other puzzler disease is systemic lupus erythematosus, nicknamed S. L. E. It resembles rheumatoid arthritis, but at the same time can affect kidneys, skin and other organs. It can be mistaken for arthritis, rheumatic fever, kidney disease, and other ailments, said Dr. Edmund L. Dubois, University of Southern California School of Medicine.

Death Rate Drops
With no treatment, half its victims die within two years, he said. With modern treatments, the death rate at the Los Angeles County Hospital, where S. L. E. has been intensively studied, was dropped to 10 per cent in two years time, Dr. Dubois said.

Treatments include adrenal hormones, antimalaria drugs, and nitrogen mustard drugs, used alone or in combinations. Dr. Dubois and associates largely pioneered use of the antimalarial drugs in S. L. E.

More cases of S. L. E. are being reported, he said, but this might be due to a more accurate diagnosis. Ninety per cent of victims are women. The disease can come and go, with 40 per cent of persons getting spontaneous remissions or improvements for periods of months or sometimes years.

Humanitarian Approach Seen Best For U.S.

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

In his promised reappraisal of America's foreign aid policy, one of the first things Secretary Dulles will need is a recapitulation of just what the nation is trying to do.

For nearly 10 years now the chief emphasis of American foreign policy has been on development of a system of alliances, political, economic and military, with which to insure that the post-war tide of Russian expansion will rise no higher.

The nation is now carrying global commitments, through the Western Hemisphere Pact, NATO, SEATO, and bilateral agreements. It has become an active participant in the economic phases of the Baghdad Pact. Hardly a nation anywhere but has received some form of American aid since World War II.

Yet a number of nations remain uncommitted in the cold war, either by treaty or by sentiment, and some of them, like India, are of great importance.

Went To Grass Roots

In the beginning, American aid was extended through the United Nations, UNRRA. It went directly to the grass roots of post-war agony, taking care of people.

Then came the Marshall Plan, the first great unilateral action by the United States designed to prevent Communist expansion in Europe. It was offered to everyone, but the Communist bloc turned it down in one of its first open declarations of cold war.

The four years of the Marshall Plan were not over when developments in Europe and Asia, particularly the Korean war, shifted American aid emphasis from the economic to the military. And there it has stayed until Russia, taking a page from the American book, adapted the lessons of the Marshall Plan to her own use.

Through all these meanderings there has been a tendency in the United States—a tendency frequently criticized by foreigners who have not been told very well—toward the idea of the American-Russian quarrel—to let fundamental objectives drift into the background.

Strategic Interest

The fundamental interest of the United States is not to create a system of alliances which will deter the Communists from making war and prevent their expansion by other means. That is a tactic.

The strategic interest of the United States is in creating a world situation in which a system of alliances will be unnecessary. There is a grave question whether unilateral, bilateral or even multilateral economic and military agreements can attain this end. Even the committed nations are constantly either looking for the strings to American aid or actually feeling them. There has been resentment on this score even from America's very best friends.

In the light of Russia's growing ability to compete with the American giveaway programs, the United States seems likely to profit most from actions which attain higher levels of selfishness.

Dulles may find that the most reassuring thing America could do, the most convincing impact which could be made on uncommitted minds, would be to shift from the quid pro quo of individual action to a broad humanitarian program conducted through the United Nations.

21 Senators, 187 Members Of House Seek Renomination

HARRISBURG, April 18—Twenty-one senators and 187 members of the House of Representatives are seeking renomination in Tuesday's primary election.

Those campaigning for a chance to run for another term include the speaker of the House, Rep. H. G. Andrews, (Cambria) the president pro tempore of the Senate, Sen. M. Harvey Taylor (Dauphin) and the Democratic leaders of both branches, Sen. John H. Dent (Westmoreland) and Rep. Albert S. Readinger (Berks).

All 210 seats in the House and half of the Senate's 50 seats are at stake at the November election. This is because representatives serve two year terms and senators four years with one-half of the Senate being elected every two years.

Not a Candidate

The House Republican floor leader, Rep. Charles C. Smith cannot seek reelection because he is his party's candidate for nomination as auditor general. Sen. Rowland B. Mahany, the other GOP floor leader, has another two years to run on his current term.

There are six vacancies in the two houses, three in each. In both cases two were caused by resignations last year and one by death. The members who died were Sen. William H. Davis (R—Luzerne) and Rep. Henry C. Spencer (R—Lackawanna).

Twenty members of the House and three members of the Senate did not file for reelection.

Volcano Grows 105 Feet

CATANIA, Sicily, April 18—Mt. Etna, Europe's tallest volcano, grew 105 feet this spring. Volcanologists found the cone was built up by eruptions during the past few months. Mt. Etna now is 3,295 meters high (10,810 feet).

India Reveals Campaign

NEW DELHI, India, April 18—India's government plans to spend 50 million rupees (10½ million dollars) in the next five years on a campaign to erase "untouchability." The untouchables are the lowest, poorest caste among India's millions.

Stocks Fail To Weather Late Selling

NEW YORK, April 18—The stock market tried its best to advance today but finally closed lower.

Prices were slightly higher throughout the day in the bulk of the list with a handful of leaders moving extreme amounts either way. The spread amounted to 3 or 4 points with some stocks showing even wider changes.

Steels, oils and railroads provided the main prop for the market. Aircrafts were down and there were heavy losers in the non-ferrous metals and chemicals. Motors and utilities were fairly steady and the radio-televisions were higher.

After the close, the New York Stock Exchange reported an increase of nearly 10 per cent in the short interest which stood at 2,529,580 shares as of April 13. The total is slightly higher than an average day's volume of business. The total number of shares traded today, for example, was 2,470,000 as compared with 2,330,000 yesterday.

Selective Trading

The short interest is the number of shares borrowed and sold in the expectation that they can be repurchased later at a lower price and a consequent profit.

A great amount of trading today was selective in the light of the numerous annual meetings and reports on first quarter profits.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 40 cents at $158.10. The industrial component was down $1.60 but the railroads were up 50 cents, and utilities remained unchanged.

The lower tilt of the market was shown by the 550 losers as contrasted to the 401 gainers in the list of 1,205 individual issues traded. There also were 71 new lows for the year as against 61 new highs.

The American Stock Exchange was mixed on volume of 1,130,000 shares as compared with 1,000,000 shares yesterday.

The bond market was lower. U. S. government issues over the counter were higher.

Legislature Recesses For Election

HARRISBURG, April 18—The General Assembly closed its doors for a two-week election recess today with little hope held by either side for any compromise action on the question of annual sessions.

If after the lawmakers return to Harrisburg May 1, they fail to reach an accord on the question, it would mean the voters will be prevented from expressing their opinion on the proposal at the November election.

Both houses remained in session today while the Senate gave final passage to a House-approved bill appropriating 20 million dollars in stop-gap funds to continue financing the government.

The measure was moved to Gov. Leader's desk for his signature.

Fourth Appropriation

This will make the fourth such appropriation passed by the legislature during its marathon session to finance operations until the lawmakers adjourn finally.

Capitol Hill observers now point to mid-May for possible final adjournment of the General Assembly already in its 15th month.

The disagreement on the annual sessions proposal lies in limitations the Senate would place on the annual sessions.

In 1953 both houses approved a proposed constitutional amendment setting up yearly sessions.

During the odd numbered years of legislation and during the even numbered years it would consider financial matters.

Both houses have approved annual sessions proposals during this session. The House version is the same as the one approved in 1953.

Different Version

The Senate version differs and this means if passed it would have to be approved by another session of the General Assembly before it could be put to a vote of the public.

If the House plan were accepted the question could be placed before the voters in the coming general election and it accepted could become effective in 1958.

The once-approved House version would authorize the governor to designate specific subjects in addition to taxes and appropriations that could be considered during the even numbered years. The Senate version would not.

The Senate also wants to limit the odd numbered sessions to 60 days.

May 15 Set As Deadline

HARRISBURG, April 18—The state Commerce Department today fixed May 15 as the preliminary deadline for communities seeking to participate in a new 5 million dollar slum clearance program.

Secretary William R. Davlin said the applications should describe the area available for urban redevelopment and how much money would be needed to accomplish the job.

"Local contributions under the matching fund plan may be in cash or may be partially in the form of additional facilities to serve the new urban project such as new schools, new streets, sewers or water mains," Davlin said.

Gov. Leader signed into law last week a 5 million appropriation for urban redevelopment. Communities may participate in it on a matching basis. The federal government puts up $2 for each $1 put up jointly by the state and locally.

Davlin fixed the May 15 deadline in letters to 50 mayors, 919 borough officials and 27 redevelopment authority chairmen.
